Resocialization:

Resocialization examples:

Total Institutions:

Total Inst. examples

Dual Socialization:

Dual Soc. examples -

Traditional motivations for punishment and incarceration:

Incapacitation:

Deterrence:

Retribution:

Rehabilitation:

Ideal vs. Real Culture:
Lockdown First Timers -- Ft. Dodge Correctional Facility
Offenders: Ben Byford, Thomas Boggs, Anthony Klein, Cameron Dodd, Jerome Ennis, Phineas Atwood
Staff: RIVERS - Mike Swanson, Disciplinary Judge Deborah Edwards,

1. What makes this setting an example of a total institution? How is the socialization process different in this setting than it would be outside of a total institution?
2. Use the experiences of one of the offenders to illustrate your understanding of dual socialization.
3. Use specific situations or examples from the video to demonstrate your understanding of each of the motivations for punishment and incarceration.
4. Do you feel that Iowa created an accurate description of their facility? Explain how this can be used as an example of the difference between real and ideal culture.

The Fort Dodge Correctional Facility (FDCF) is a medium security prison with a current rated capacity of 1162. The facility’s seven housing units are organized to support positive behavior and is designed especially to house young, male offenders. Primary perimeter security is provided by a double fence system with electronic detection. FDCF offers a variety of offender programs and the New Frontiers Substance Abuse Program is licensed by the State of Iowa. FDCF’s Young Offender Program, RIVERS (Redirecting Individual Values, Energy, Relationships, and Skills), is a 5-month voluntary intensive program. In addition to programming, offenders are provided work opportunities including private sector jobs inside the fence to assist in developing the skills needed to become a productive and successful citizen.